

TAKE FLIGHT 2024

VIRTUAL PARTNERS MEETING

Advancing Western Monarch and Native Insect Pollinator Conservation

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 2024

Using atlas data to inform statewide conservation targets

Molly Martin

molly.martin@xerces.org

The Xerces Society for Invertebrate Conservation

Molly is an endangered species conservation biologist with the Xerces Society. Her work spans a range of species across the western US, primarily focusing on bumble bees and butterflies. Molly led the development of Washington's Bumble Bee Conservation Strategy in coordination with state and federal agencies, and is currently in the process of developing a similar strategy for Oregon.

